

Jackson Herman

I graduated from the New Zealand Film & Television school at the end of 2018, which prepared me with the necessary skills and knowledge for entry level roles in the industry. I am an enthusiastic and effective team member, and have gone on to have a varying degree of entry level roles on various projects. Working on so many projects has also given me the skills and insight to utilise on my own, having created projects between my work in the industry. My work in film and independently has given me great time-management, communication, collaboration, and problem solving skills.
